

Carin Brio - Bio

Carin Brio is the owner of Brio Law, and handles all aspects of Wills, Trusts, Probate, and Real Estate matters.

Helping people – that is what the law is all about for Carin. Since she was young, she knew that her career would be in a field that improves the lives of people. For Carin, that meant the law.

Not just becoming a lawyer, but helping her clients truly understand how the law can be used to help them and improve their lives. As Carin explains, “I take a unique approach to how I interact with my clients. I want to really partner with my clients and understand their vision, their goals and their frustrations.” Whether it is helping a family address their estate planning needs or find security in knowing that their assets are protected, Carin is there to make the complexities of the legal system simple for her clients.

Carin received her Bachelors of Science from City University of Seattle, her Juris Doctor from Western Michigan School of Law, and her LL.M. in International Criminal Law and Justice from the University of New Hampshire. Carin is licensed to practice law in Illinois, Massachusetts and Wisconsin and currently lives in the Woodstock, Illinois area with her husband and their daughter.